Clubs

Green Lasetter

The Green Lasetter Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Carter Sutton March 1 at 7:30. The meeting was opened by the group repeating the Home Demonstration Woman's Creed. Mrs. M. B. Gentry led the group in singing "We are here for fun," which was followed by the reading of the devotionals. 11 John 1:11 by Mrs. Sutton. Prayer was led by Mrs. Sam England.

During the business session, leaders and sides were chosen for competition on the membership drive. Several members decided to make trays in the near future. Mrs. Herbert Hartsfield gave a demonstration on making a wall vase for potted plants and a recipe book for the kitchen.

Mrs. Sam England led a discussion on the "20 common danger signals of diseases." Mrs. Ernest Cobb gave a discussion on civil defense.

Refreshments were served to 10 members, 3 new members, and 3 visitors. Mrs. Peggy Powell, Mrs. Dorsey Collins and Mrs. Joe Hollis. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Patsy Beard.

Baker

The Baker Home Demonstration Club met on Thursday night, March 8, in the home of Mrs. Woodrow Baker on West Avenue B.

The meeting was opened with the members pledging the American Creed followed with the singing of "America," led by the song leader Mrs. Tonnemaker. Mrs. Tonnemaker also led in prayer.

The group decided to hold a canny sale in front of Penny's Store on Saturday, March 31.

A demonstration, "Clothes Line Conduct" was given by Mrs. Merilyn Cox, assisted by Mrs. Baker and Mrs. H. H. Tippett. She also showed a tray made from the top of a fuel oil can that she had cleaned, painted and decorated with a decal.

Health leader, Mrs. Orville Steadman, led an interesting discussion period on the twenty danger signals of bad health.

Refreshments were served to 15 members, one guest, Miss Carol Baker, and two new members, Mrs. O. F. Lloyd and Mrs. Lloyd Lingo.

Victory

An educational film, "Breast-Self-Examination" was shown by Mrs. Ernest Graham at the Victory Home Demonstration Club when the club met at the club house for the March meeting. Mrs. Graham also gave out leaflets on the "7 Danger Signals of Cancer" and told of other educational material available through the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. Lorraine B. Wylie, home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on making house shoes and gave out patterns for the shoe. Mrs. Hallar McCorkle also showed a pair of house shoes she had made.

Mrs. Jack Sumpter, health leader, gave a talk on the 20 common danger signals of disease. Mrs. Bill Burke, home management leader, gave a demonstration on the proper way to hang clothes on the line to save ironing and to save wear on the clothing.

Mrs. William Schooley, president opened the meeting with the group repeating the Home Demonstration Woman's Creed. Group singing was led by Mrs. Robert Cash. Mrs. Roy Seewald brought the devotionals taken from 11 John 1:11 followed with the repeating of the Lord's prayer. Roll call was answered by "My biggest health problem."

Recreation was led by Mrs. McCorkle. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Schooley and Mrs. Sumpter. Club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Seewald in April.

March Meeting

The March meeting of the '38 Home Demonstration Club was held in the home of Mrs. Cline Franks on March 6. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Claud Byrd. The hostess gave the devotionals and led the group in prayer. Roll call was answered by "My biggest health problem."

The club scrapbook was discussed and plans were made to start working on it as soon as possible. Plans were made for as many members as possible to attend the March 9 County Council meeting.

Mrs. Fred Stewart gave a discussion on ways for the club to make money. The one decided on was a friendship basket to be passed among the club members.

The club project is helping needy families and all the members are meeting Thursday to fix a box for a family.

Ford Foundation Has New Coordinator

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Dr. Milton L. Braughton of Arkansas A&M College is the new coordinator for the Ford Foundation's Arkansas Experiment in Teachers Education.

The educator, an associate professor of history at A&M, will serve a 6-month term, succeeding Dr. Hoyt Throbridge in June. In the job, Dr. Braughton will direct the work of 15 colleges taking part in the experiment.

Under the Ford Foundation plan, college students who plan to teach liberal arts four years, and then take part in practice teaching while working toward master's degrees.

Orphans of Korea to Play in Picture

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ool. Dean Hess was in Hollywood this week with 25 of his children.

The kids were flown in from Korea, where they live in an orphanage which Col. Hess founded and helps support. They are here to act in "Battle Hymn," the film version of the colonel's amazing life.

Col. Hess lean handsome and dark-haired, was at Universal-International when his charges arrived and he rushed forward to greet them affectionately. The kids, who ranged from 2 to 8, chattered happily in Korean as he shepherded them to the wardrobe departments to be fitted for their costumes. They changed from their neat outfits to tattered clothes, which is how Hess found many of them in strife-torn Korea.

While he watched over the wide-eyed youngsters, he talked about the movie.

"Yes, it is somewhat eerie to be reliving your life," he observed. "I find myself looking back with regret about things I should have done."

The Hess story, which will be portrayed by Rock Hudson, begins in Marietta, Ohio, where he was a minister in the Church of the Disciples of Christ. The preacher, who had flown his light plane to churches around Ohio, enlisted in the Air Force during World War II.

"A commission as a chaplain came through after I had graduated as a first lieutenant," he recalled. "But I sent it back. I felt that I couldn't ask my neighbor to bear arms against the enemy if I didn't do so myself. I also felt I could accomplish more as a regular officer than as a chaplain. There is a national barrier that exists between soldiers and chaplains."

He flew 63 fighter-bomber missions in Europe. During one of them, a bomb dropped accidentally. He later learned that it fell on an orphanage. This weighed heavily on his mind.

During the Korean War, he helped organize the ROK air force and flew 250 missions himself. He was touched by the pitiful bands of orphans in that wretched land and decided to do something about it. He took over an old government building on Chenju and air-lifted the orphans out of the combat zones.

Now there are 714 in the orphanage, and Hess has donated proceeds from his book and the movie to its support.

Now special assistant to the air force assistant chief of staff for personnel in the Pentagon, Hess will oversee at least part of the filming of his story. But he may leave abruptly for Alexandria, Va., where his wife expects soon to give birth to their third child.

'King Kong' Still Making Rounds on TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The other night I tuned in the TV set and there was my old pal King Kong, he of the flaming eyes and monstrous apelike breed. It gave me quite a turn.

There was a somewhat younger Bruce Cabot running around in rutties, and my old flame, Fay Wray, when Kong coveted I stuck right with it to that climactic scene, you remember, where Kong climbs the Empire State Building and those old World War I biplane Curtis Hawks come slanting with that ah-ah-ah-ack of machine guns.

It took me back to 1933 before Hollywood ever had heard of television and "King Kong" stalked the neighborhood movie houses, fascinating or horrifying us adolescents according to our natures. Personally I caught it at a movie house known as the Royal on a dark and rainy Saturday night—ALONE.

Cursed by either cowardice or an overly active imagination, I made my way uneasily home through silent, rain-swept streets. The folks were out. I turned on a lot of lights and the radio and I was pretty brave for a while there until I heard the car in the driveway. Then I was ashamed of management.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Hamp Hewitt and game prize by Mrs. Homer Cobb.

Refreshments of cream puffs and coffee were served by the ladies in Mmes. Claud Byrd, Fred Stewart, Hamp Hewitt, Lester Hucksabe, Bill Houston, Homer Cobb, Elmer Jaerod and H. M. Ward.

Boy Plagued With Misery From A to Z

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Life is full of temptations for 8-year-old Rickie Reynolds, whose allergies range from A to Z.

Like most youngsters, he has cravings for chocolates, fruits and pet animals but he can't have them. When he fudges and eats something he shouldn't he developed a headache, an itch, a wheeze, a cough or a runaway nose.

"Rickie is allergic to just about everything God put on this good earth," said his mother Mrs. Pierce James Reynolds.

He can't stand feathers or hairs his pets are a pair of goldfish.

A robust third-grader, Rickie has to weigh his playing against the consequences. When he runs and breathes faster he inhales dust and pollen which set off reactions. The lad is unable to swim in pools treated with chlorine.

Mrs. Reynolds said his allergies change from time to time and as a result he was given 87 tests injections last year to discover whether he had developed any new ones.

His body apparently builds up immunity to certain drugs and often new medicines are substituted, she said.

Every day Rickie is dosed with pills, ointments and a vitamin capsule to counteract his multitude of allergies. He washes with special soap which costs 40 cents a cake. He gets two inoculations every Saturday.

Fresh milk, pillows, starch in his trousers, one type of sulfa drug, flannel clothes and rugs are a few of the things taboo with Rickie.

Doctors have told the family Rickie's allergy encompasses 85 per cent of his blood cells.

Sees Negroes Voting for GOP at Polls

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.), chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, today predicted a big upswing in the northern Negro vote for Republicans this year.

Simpson and two Democratic congressional campaign committee members, Representatives Madden (Ind) and Bennett (Ela), disagreed with a statement by Rep. Powell (D-NY) that there is "distinct possibility of a new political party will result from the bitter battle over segregation."

Powell, one of three Negro House members, told a news conference yesterday "many Negroes will desert the Democratic party unless it returns to what he called the stronger civil rights policies of former President Truman."

Powell said President Eisenhower has not been as affirmative in favor of civil rights as he was earlier in his term, and added: "If President Eisenhower goes back to where he left off two years ago on civil rights—and (Adlai) Stevenson or other Democratic candidates continue to stand in the middle of the road (on civil rights)—I'd probably vote Republican this year."

Simpson said the Negro vote in big Northern cities ran about 4-1 in favor of the Democrats in 1952, but now is swinging "very definitely toward the Republicans."

DESTROYED BY FIRE

JONESBORO, (UP)—A fire at Egypt, about 15 miles northeast of here, destroyed a combination grocery and gas station and caused at least $20,000 damage yesterday.

The blaze started around noon, when kerosene, being used to clean the floor in the station, was ignited by a heating stove.

Owners of the building are J. T. Lingo and his son, Harry. The younger Lingo, who estimated the damage, said that it will be only partially covered by insurance.

myself—and haven't mentioned it till now.

To be honest about it, I didn't just happen to tune the set to "King Kong." I heard people talking about it. The grassroots comment I heard on the reshooting of the old movie took two turns.

First, many oldsters were interested that youngsters who weren't alive to see Kong in his original movie tour are just as excited by him as the oldsters were when THEY were young. It was quite heart-warming to some to find that kids are still kids after all—despite his warped notions of some adults that they're an entirely different breed these days.

At first I was inclined to agree with him. And then I remembered my own experience with Kong and thought what a sanctimonious attitude to strike in my old age. True, King had frightened me. But not enough to send me into a decline or ever put me in the hands of a psychiatrist.

In a way an old movie like "King Kong" probably does more good than harm. It gives us oldsters the pleasure of that old nostalgia. And it gives youngsters the pleasure of something brand new.

B. W. C. F. Meets At Church

The Business Women's Christian Fellowship of the First Christian Church met on Monday night at the church for the monthly meeting with the president, Mrs. B. C. Silvers, presiding.

The meeting opened with the theme song "Evening Prayer" followed by prayer by the president.

Following the business session Miss Elizabeth Francisco, assisted by Mrs. Mildred Dawson, Mrs. L. J. Bryson, Mrs. Ray Peachey and Mrs. Silvers, presented the program on "The Master and I."

The meeting closed with the Missionary benediction.

A delectable dessert course was served by Mrs. Ray Pachey to nine members and two guests.

The next meeting will be held at the church with Mrs. B. C. Silvers, leader.

Rally To Open City-Wide Revival Sunday

"Unusual interest is seen on every hand in the city-wide revival services scheduled for next week," according to an announcement from Prescott's Ministerial Alliance. President Warren Golden reports one hundred per cent cooperation on the part of the business, being conducted simultaneously in six different denominations, open with a Court House Lawn Rally at 2:30 Sunday afternoon (at the Methodist Church in case of bad weather). Rev. Ford Boone, visiting evangelist for the Church of the Nazarene, from McComb, Miss., is the Rally Speaker. This program will be broadcast over KXAR, Hope.

All business houses in the downtown area will be closed from 8 to 9 for the morning services, except Drug Stores and Cafes—and these are arranging to operate with skeleton crews to allow personnel to attend.

Supt. Ed Smith of Prescott's Public Schools, announced that the three schools will begin sessions ten minutes later than the usual schedule to allow students and faculty to participate in these morning worship periods.

Cooperating churches, which include the Assembly of God, Methodist, Nazarene, First Christian, Presbyterian and First Baptist, have arranged especially attractive and helpful services for the week, and cordially invite the general public to attend. Two services daily, 8 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. are planned for each church.

Wesleyan Guild Has Study

Members of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the First Methodist Church met on Monday evening at the church for a mission study with Mrs. N. R. Nelson and Mrs. L. O. Lee hostesses.

Mrs. Lela Hays, spiritual life chairman, gave the devotional.

A playlet "Unchangeable Light" was presented by Mrs. Kenneth Ledbetter Mrs. J. A. Cole, Mrs. Milburn Tippet, Mrs. Charlie Thomas, Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Lee.

Mrs. Thomas gave the study on "Confessions of St. Augustine."

Coffee and cookies were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be on March 26 with Miss Sue Martin and Mrs. Vuel Chamberlain hostesses.

Mrs. H. H. McKenzie and Mrs. J. H. Langley were Tuesday visitors in Texarkana.

Mrs. Archie Johnson and Mrs. Harold Parker motored to Texarkana Tuesday and were accompanied home by Mrs. Gil Buchanan who has been a patient in St. Michael's Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewel White have returned from Osceola where they have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad White.

Mrs. C. R. Gray of Newport is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Gray Jr. and family.

Friends of E. E. Bomar will regret that he is ill at the Cora Donnell Hospital.

Friends of W. D. Durham will be glad to know he is recovering from virus pneumonia.

Well-to-Do Husband Isn't Sharing Assets With Wife

Dear Miss Dix: My husband was a widower of 62 at the time of our marriage a year ago. He has three children, married and well established. I had one son 21. There has never been friction among us; even my son who is in college, and his stepfather get along very well.

My husband is a man of considerable property, all in his name. I have a fairly large bank account and a small business of my own. I'd like to deposit my income with his so we could save for the trip we hope to make later in the year. Friends tell me, however that with the present financial set-up, I wouldn't even have the furniture if he died; everything would go to his children. I know he wants the major portion of his property to go to them but I do feel some consideration is due me.

I love him a great deal and am deeply hurt that he feels this way about money. Should I worry about it, and should I deposit my savings with his? GLENDA G.

Answer: When in doubt, go to an expert in the field. In this case it would be a lawyer. Property settlements are sometimes tricky and it would be best to have everything in black and white.

Both Consider Children

If you should die first, naturally you'd want whatever assets you leave to go to your son. Your husband is equally concerned about protecting his children.

It's a funny thing about property. Most people like to see blood kin get it, even though they don't particularly need it and sometimes haven't even deserved it. Where an estate is involved, even a well-loved wife will be by-passed in favor of children.

Pending a legal settlement of your question, it would be best to keep your money in a separate account, rather than to add it to his. Since he has no intention, at the moment, of sharing neither should you.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a recent bride, with a new house, nicely furnished. My husband doesn't approve of me working so I stay home and take pride in keeping my house in good order. My friends with children want me to baby-sit while they work, shop, go to the hairdresser or play bridge. I wouldn't mind if these youngsters were well trained, but they break, wreck, mare and destroy. My husband is disgusted but I hate to hurt my friends' feelings.

Answer: Your husband worked hard and saved carefully to furnish this nice home for you. The least you can do is consider his wishes (and your own inclinations, I bet) and keep the house-wreckers out. Whose feelings are more important to you—husband's or friends'?

Dear Miss Dix: About a year ago I met and fell in love with a wonderful guy. We went together a few months, then broke up. He is a "mammy's boy" and could never come see me when he was able to get away from his mother. We never could have pleased each other. However, I do love him.

Answer: A man who can't even date you openly seems a slim risk for the future. Cultivate your other friends.

Dear Miss Dix: I am the mother of two daughters two years apart in age. My oldest didn't start going to dances and dating until she was 16. Before then, the girls attended school socials together and went out afterward, together. My younger girl is going to a social soon and wants my permission to go out with a group of girls and boys when it ends.

I want to be fair and still do the right thing. I have allowed the younger girl to attend dances with her sister but am enforcing the "no dating" rule until she's 16. Should I make an exception of this social and let her go with the boys as long as I know where they are going and that they'll be home at a specified time? Should I give my younger daughter privileges I didn't allow the older one? T. A. M.

Answer: Younger children of a family very often get more privileges than the oldest. Perhaps because we were too strict with the first-born, beset by fears that time has proven groundless.

There's no reason why parents should be bound by precedent. If all other factors are favorable, let some of the barriers down. I would let the younger girl attend her school social in a group and also permit dating privileges subject to such restrictions as you make.

They'll Develop Poise

Young people are growing up in a world of men and women. Poise and social maturity can best be developed by permitting boys and girls to date with the group of which they are a part. This is a difficult time for parents (what time isn't?). They must let the children go, yet feel a restraining hand is also needed. Combining the two with tact is no easy task.

My oldest child broke up every party he attended in his early teens because we stuck to an arbitrary curfew. It was a mistake, so as his brothers followed him up the social ladder, they had more lenient rules. We have had no cause to regret it, either. There were always rules, but we also recognized the need for flexibility. A conscientious parent can do no more.

Dear Miss Dix: Last summer I met a boy in the Navy and we fell in love. He returned to his ship a few days later, and I didn't have an opportunity to meet his parents. We've corresponded regularly. He's coming home in a few days and I'd like to meet him at the airport. Of course his parents will be there. They know he has a girl. Would they resent my running out to meet him while they are waiting to greet him or should I let him come to my home?

Answer: I'm sure parents would be deeply hurt if a young lady they didn't even know dashed ahead of them for the returning sailor's first greeting. Unless they ask you to go along for the arrival, wait at home.

Dear Miss Dix: Two months ago a fellow and I broke up. I still love him very much. We broke up be-

Governor's Office Typewriter Missing

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Disappearance of an electric typewriter valued at $372 from the governor's office was reported today to the Joint Legislative Audit Committee. Legislative auditor Orvel M. Johnson said the typewriter was included in an equipment inventory June 30, 1954. A typewriter company service record showed that the machine was serviced Oct. 27, 1954 but that service record entries Feb. 24, 1955, and June 24, 1955, showed "could not locate."

The audit of the governor's office and the mansion was one of a half dozen routine reports submitted to the committee by Johnson today. All were received and filed.

Thought For The Day
Let us do our duty in our shop or our kitchen; in the market, the street, the office, the school, the home just as faithfully as if we stood in the front rank of some great battle, and knew that victory for mankind depended on our bravery, strength, and skill. When we do that, the humblest of us will be serving in that great army which achieves the welfare of the world. -Theodore Parker said it.

Calendar Of Events
Spring Revival At Garrett Chapel

The Spring Revival will begin at Garrett Chapel Baptist Church Wednesday night, March 21 and continue through March 30. The Rev. C. B. Black of Texarkana will bring the message each night.

Rev. Black is pastoring the following churches: Pleasant Hill, Lily of the Valley, Clarksville, Texas; New Zion, Texarkana, Texas; and New Hope, Falcum, Arkansas. A great Revival is anticipated. Rev. F. R. Williams, Pastor.

Invitation To All Choirs
All Choirs in the city of Hope, and in Communities near Hope, are invited to give two members on our Pre-Easter Broadcast on the Fourth Sunday night. All music will be planned for the Easter season.

If you can serve, write to Rev. F. B. Williams, P. O. Box 285, or P. O. Box 372, Hope, Arkansas, by the 23 of March.

There will be a 'Fish Fry and Ice cream Social' given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Logan, tonight at 7 o'clock.

This is one of the projects being sponsored by Mrs. Logan (Arizona), in the State Rally which is now in progress at Mt. Zion C. M. E. Church. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Let Us Forget
Mrs. Fannie Alexander and Mrs. Bernice Foster (Arkansas) and Florida in the State Rally at Bethel A. M. E. Church) are sponsoring a Silver Dollar Orange Sipping at Bethel Church, Sunday March 18, from 3 till 6 p. m.

If you have not received an invitation, you are cordially invited to register at the Center.

Over 100 Life Suspensions in Athletics

NEW YORK (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union said today there have been "more than 100 life suspensions of athletes" similar to that imposed on Miller Wes Santee, but the cases failed to receive publicity.

Many of these athletes were just as famous as Santee, the AAU added, and never questioned their suspensions.

The statements were contained in affidavits filed with the state supreme court, which will start hearing the Santee case Thursday.

In the affidavits, the AAU sought to show that it was not making an exception of Santee in placing a lifetime ban on America's premier mile and Olympic 1,500 meter hope.

Santee was barred by the AAU Feb. 19 on charges of professional, but since then "has gained two stays in the form of temporary injunctions restraining the AAU from carrying through its suspension until the case has been aired in court.

He ran in mile races against token fields in New York March 3 and in Milwaukee March 10. Charles P. Grimes, Santee's attorney, gained the injunctions on the grounds that the AAU acted without authority in the Santee case and also had overlooked previous infractions of a similar nature.

The AAU denied these allegations in affidavits filed by Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the AAU, and Pincus Sober, chairman of a special committee which investigated the runner and brought new evidence before the AAU board of governors.

Ferris said the national organization on numerous occasions had taken original jurisdiction over local committees.

Santee was suspended last year by the Missouri Valley, his home district, on charges of accepting excess expense money but later was cleared by the Missouri Valley Board of Governors.

Grimes contends the national body has no authority to override the local group but that any new evidence should be sent back to the Missouri Valley for a new hearing.

Ferris said in his affidavit that the constitution of the AAU very clearly gives the Board of Governors the right to take the action it did.

"The Board of Governors," the affidavit states, "shall have the power to impose and enforce penalties for any violation of the constitution, by-laws or rules of the union."

THE STORY: Mike Morrison, an American caught by the Nazis in Greece in 1941, is trying to deliver information to British Intelligence at Athens. Germans are tracking him down. Mike escapes with a girl Eleftheria from one village and has taken refuge with another Greek, Barba-Leonidas, who lost a son in the war.

CHAPTER XVII

The night's restful sleep in the soft down bed worked wonders on Mike's tired bones. He sat down hungrily to the dawn meal with Barba-Leonidas and awaited the arrival of Eleftheria. His mind was filled with plans to get to Athens. The giant remained silent except for his slurping of the boiling-hot coffee. As the meal drew to a close a feeling of alarm swept over Mike.

"Where is Eleftheria?" he asked. "She went back to Dernaica."

"What do you mean she went back to Dernaica? Did you send her?"

"She went back. What difference does it make why she went? She went."

"It makes a lot of difference to me!"

"Don't get excited. She promises to return on the Sabbath."

The Sabbath came. Mike awoke early and anxiously awaited the arrival of Eleftheria. By midmorning Barba-Leonidas became strangely silent. By afternoon he knew full well that one of two things had happened. Eleftheria was going to see that he stayed in Kaloghrani, or Barba-Leonidas was going to see to it.

In the early afternoon Mike had reached the breaking point and demanded to know what was going on. Barba-Leonidas, who could not lie with a straight face, refused to answer. He selected a rifle and stomped from the cottage, announcing that he was going rabbit hunting.

Mike turned to Despo. The aged, wrinkled woman looked up sheepishly from her weaving.

"Eleftheria — where is she?" Despo shook her head. "Tell me where she is!"

"She was here!" Despo cried. "She was here in mid-week. You were in the fields. Barba-Leonidas sent her away."

"Why?"

"Because you are his son and you can never leave."

Mike fumed about the cottage for 15 minutes. Despo sank back into silence, but her hands nearly flew in nervousness over the weaving machine. Barba-Leonidas had him trapped. He had no way of getting to Dernaica — did not even know its general direction. He realized, too, that he'd never get the information from anyone in Kaloghrani. Mike had only one choice — to find Leonidas and have it out.

He stormed from the cottage in search of the hunting party. He climbed till afternoon when the mountain began to grow steeper. Mike worked his way to a balding shoulder near the top, crossed a rocky field, and there a peak loomed but a few hundred yards up a sheer wall.

A breathtaking sight burst before him as he stood atop the mountain with the thrill of a conqueror. To the east the blue Aegean Sea and her islands and to the west the rippling regiments of hills.

Mike stood and looked — and remembered.

He saw 17 men at elegant desks, working at files, or attending cocktail parties or hobnobbing with German officers. The British were probably desperate for these 17 names. He had been overcautious in wasting weeks. He didn't know. But leave the hills he must. Bullying Leonidas would be no simple chore. Only yesterday Leonidas led the village in burning a German order for wheat allotment.

The only clear plan he could formulate would be to send Eleftheria to Athens to contact Dr. Harry Thackeray. She wasn't the world's brightest and if there was any trouble she'd never be able to cope with it.

Do I have the right to make a pawn of her — risk her life? He asked himself. Many people have already died because of the Stergios list. Life was a small thing in the struggle to find the names. Then, Mike argued with himself, Eleftheria would want to go to Athens if she knew what was at stake.

One cold fact remained. Her life or his was unimportant in the ultimate delivery of the 7 names. Mike took one last look at the view and started down the mountainside.

It was dark when he reached the cottage. Barba-Leonidas was pale when Mike entered. Then, upon seeing Mike, his face broke into an expression of relief which belied his effort to pretend he was unconcerned.

"You stupid Englezos. I was about to go out and look for you. Do not go roaming these hills without me in the future."

"Tomorrow you go to Dernaica and get Eleftheria."

"Sit down and eat and don't talk so much."

Mike grabbed Leonidas by the shirt. "You go to Dernaica or I go."

Barba-Leonidas looked to Despo and shrugged. "Mad — he's gone mad."

"All right, then. I'm going — right now."

He stared at Mike with an expression of hurt written all over his bearded face. "What is the matter with you, Jay?"

"Believe me, my friend, I have great love for you, but I must get to Athens."

"You — you want to leave You really want to leave?"

"I must leave."

A middle-aged woman, obviously not Greek, sat behind a small counter with earphones on her head. There was a desk and many papers scattered on it. Eleftheria approached with great caution.

"I wish to see Dr. Harry Thackeray," she whispered.

"Your name, please."

"Eleftheria Yalouris."

"Do you have an appointment with the doctor?" the woman asked, looking inquiringly at the uncomfortable peasant girl before her.

"No. He does not know me."

"Just a moment, please," the woman said. She rose from behind the counter and disappeared behind a large double door that led down a long corridor.

The receptionist returned. "I'm sorry. Dr. Thackeray cannot see you."

Eleftheria fidgeted with her handbag and shifted her weight several times. She tried to think of what Jay had told her.

"When can I see him?" That was the right thing to say.

"I'm afraid he is very busy. He is preparing an expedition for some diggings."

She remembered that as a small child she had seen some foreign men digging around Dernaica. Before the war foreigners always came to dig all over the province.

"But — but — I have traveled all the way from Dadi. It is very important."

There was a buzz from the odd box on the desk. The woman stopped the buzz by sticking a piece of metal attached to a cord into a little hole. The door opened and two men who were no Greeks came into the room and sat down and looked at magazines.

"Just what do you want to see Dr. Thackeray about?"

"It is a personal matter and one of great importance — and I have come a long way."

The woman shrugged and once again disappeared behind the double doors. She returned. "Follow me, please," she said. The woman marched briskly down the long carpeted hallway past several doors with little brass name plates on them, turned sharply,
